SMITH AND HIRSHHEIMER DEMAND IMPROVEMENT IN WATER SUPPLY

OPEN LETTER TO BOARD OF WORKS

Charge the Officials with Neglect or Bad Judgment in Relation to Matter

TO EXTEND THE INTAKE PIPE

Statement Says Polluted Water Near Shore Is Being Used when Clear Water Is Accessible

To the Board of Public Works:

The intake pipe of the big pump extended into the river about 200 feet, into clear running water. Some years ago it became clogged with sand, and the city disjointed it about 30 feet from shore. Since that time the bulk of the city water supply has been taken from this impure water.

Recently you took up the unused portion of that intake pipe. Why did you not clean out the pipe and connect it up, to give us as pure water as possible?

It would have cost little if anything more than taking up the pipe. We doubt if it would cost as much. As practical men we are willing to take the contract of doing the work, as things stood when you took up the pipe, with a guarantee that it will cost the city not to exceed $500 to get as pure a water supply as the river affords, without sedimentation.

For a very small sum the intake pipe of the little pump, which is also clogged, could be flushed out.

You need not reply that they will fill up with sand again. We know that but they would not fill up for a year or two, and they can be kept open for a nominal sum. The health of the citizens is too valuable to be juggled with to save a few dollars.

How long will it take to build a new plant after one is authorized? How do you know one will be authorized in a yer, or two years, or five years? It will require at least two years to get it into operation after it is ordered built, will it not? That means at least three years before a new plant can be had. Do you intend to give the city no relief from present unsanitary conditions during a period covering at least three years to come, and nobody knows how much longer?

The people of this city want to know.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 17, 1910.

A. HIRSHHEIMER.
FRANK E. SMITH.

An interesting circumstance in relation to the above open letter to the board of public works is that while Mr. Hirshheimer favors a well system for city water, and Mr. Smith favors a river system, they are agreed on the point that the present equipment is not being used to get the best water available under the circumstances.

"I want to get this letter into The Tribune, and I am willing to pay for it," said Mr. Smith in The Tribune office.

Mr. Smith was told that The Tribune makes no charge for space used in the discussion of matters of concern to the public.

Says It's Dangerous.

"This condition is dangerous," said Mr. Smith. "There is no use dodging the fact. There is considerable sickness in La Crosse and some authorities attribute it to bad water. Hundreds of La Crosse men will tell you that they do not hesitate to drink water from the river when out fishing, but I doubt if you could find one of them who would take $100 to drink from the break in the intake where we get our water now. They would drink from the end of the intake where it it used to be, and where it could be now by spending a little money. The water there is 100 per cent better than it is at the break where we now take it into the well.

Will Do Something.

"A lot of good business men, some of them well men and some river plant men, are stirred up over this condition, which they regard as sheer neglect or bad judgment. This thing will not be permitted to go on. It may humiliate the city administration, but if something isn't done by the city they may shortly see private citizens doing the work at their own expense."

MANY GOVERNORS ATTEND

PUEBLO, Colo., Sept. 17.—Reports coming in to Arthur Hooker, secretary of the national irrigation congress indicate that the number of chief executives of the irrigated states who are planning to attend the Pueblo meeting Sept. 26-30 will make Governor's Day the biggest day of the congress.

LA FOLLETTE WILL GO UNDER KNIFE

Senator will Submit to an Operation for Gall Stones by Drs. Mayo

TASK WILL BE DELICATE ONE

But Case Is Not Urgent and No Fears Are Felt for Energetic Badger Insurgent

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 17.—Senator Robert M. La Follette is expected at Rochester, Minn., next week, to undergo an operation for gall stones by Doctors William and Charles Mayor, the noted surgeons of that city. The Wisconsin senator's condition has been such for several weeks that he has been unable to make speeches even in his own campaign. His physicians at Madison advised an operation, and he has been awaiting an opportunity to visit the Mayos, who are handicapped by limited accommodations at St. Mary's hospital, where they operate. Although the expected operation is delicate, it is not so urgent that a few days' delay is likely to result seriously.

GALE DELAYS BATTLE PRACTICE

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. IDAHO AT SEA, by wireless via Porthmouth, Va., Sept. 17.—The continuation of the storm which has blown for three days again upset the plans of the fleet today for battle practice.

Two of the ships have last anchors and another of the targets was smashed last night. The fleet is hanging on in the gale waiting for a rift in the clouds.

The storm played havoc with the targets. The lines of two were parted and in picking them up two men went overboard and were rescued with the greatest difficulty.

The army experts and newsaper correspondents who came out to see the big ship in action are for the most part hugging their berths and hoping that "battle practice or not battle practice thme fleet will take refuge in the smoother waters of Hampton Roads."

READ TREATY TO DEAD JAPANESE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 17.—The treaty by which Japan annexed Korea has been officially reported to the shade of Prince Ito according to Japanese advices received today by incoming liners. The ceremony followed immediately upon the publication of the treaty, say the advices.

Viscount Terauchi, governor of Korea, sent the following dispatch to the son of Prince Ito:

"Make a report on the treaty of annexation of Korea to the spirit of the late prince, your father."

Accordingly the prince's son, accompanied by a special representative of the Mikado went to his father's tomb and there read aloud the text of the treaty. Simultaneously other envoys were sent to the shrine of Ise and the tombs of the Japanese emperor to read the treaty.

WALL STREET GAVE MONEY TO REBELS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 17.—The relationship of Wall street to Central American revolutions, it is said today, will be the subject of warm discussion in congress this winter. It has been persistently reported that a Wall street firm furnished funds to Estrada, in carrying on his Nicaraguan revolution. Messages from Honduras say that a revolution is about to be precipitated over a proposed loan which is being negotiated by J. P. Morgan & Company.

BALLINGER PUTS IT UP TO TAFT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 17.—Intimate friends of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger here today declared that he will come to Washington next week to fight to the last ditch to hold his office. It was asserted that Ballinger did not believe President Taft has turned against him and that he will maintain his attitude of being ready to resign at Taft's request, but not otherwise.

DARES HIS CRITICS TO COME INTO OPEN

"If They will Take the Other Side, Let Them Come Out," Says Colonel Roosevelt

DEFENDS WESTERN POSITION

Also Declares He Stands with Dissenting Judges in Criticisms of the Decisions

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—In the strongest speech he has delivered since his return from Africa, Col. Theodore Roosevelt today defended his "new nationalism." Fifty thousand people at the New York state fair listened eagerly to the address.

A carefully worded endorsement of certain Taft policies marked the speech. The steps taken toward securing a tariff commission, the maximum and minimum tariff provision, the Philippine tariff arrangement all received the Roosevelt stamp of approval.

But in justifying his attack on the supreme court, delivered at Denver, the colonel quoted at length from a Taft decision of fifteen years ago, which commended honest criticism of the courts.

Roosevelt was in the center of "stand-pat," "old guard" territory today.

Everything that smacked in the least of "progressive" or "insurgent" was conspicuous by its absence.

After referring to the criticism that has been made of his speeches in the west advocating the new nationalism, Col. Roosevelt said:

"Whether the principles I have advocated are sound or not can be answered, I think, by the simple expedient of asking whether any party is willing frankly to take the other side of the proposition of which complaint is made. If so, it would be a good thing to have the issue made in clear cut fashion before the people, for in the end the people would most certainly decide in favor of the principles embodied in the new nationalism, because otherwise this country could not continue to be a true republic or a true democracy."

Roosevelt then reiterated his statements regarding the two decisions of the supreme court and defended them, saying that he merely took the position so far as the Knight case was concerned, that was taken by Justice Harlan in his dissenting opinion.

"Those who criticise me," he continued, "are also criticising Justice Harlan. Do my critics take the position that the people shall not be able to control the management and activities of those great monopolistic corporations doing an interstate business? If so, let them frankly avow their position. If not, let them cease their criticism.

"Let Them Say So"

"What I had to say about the second decision, which was against state rights, was based upon dissenting opinions by Justices Harlan, White, Day and Holmes. Here I hold that the dissenting justices were right in their views; that the state had the right to regulate the hours of labor under certain conditions. If I am wrong let those who criticise me frankly say that the state has no right to limit the hours of labor men employed under unhealthy conditions.

"Fifty-three years ago Abraham Lincoln was assailed for his repeated criticisms of the supreme court in the Dred Scott case. Moreover, he used very strong language about the decision, far stronger than I should dream of using, or which it would be proper to use about the decisions with which I now deal. But his view as to his right and duty to call attention to an erroneous decision which vitally affected the rights of the people was, I think, entirely sound. At any rate, if I have erred in commenting upon the decision in question, I err in company with Abraham Lincoln."

He then referred to the criticisms that have been made upon himself and compared them with the criticisms of the Lincoln speech. He affirmed his belief in the integrity of the courts, saying that the supreme court is the most influential tribunal in the entire world.

Praises Taft

Continuing Roosevelt said: "Nor do I have to go to only the statesmen of the past for precedents. The president of the United States, Mr. Taft, has served his country honorably and uprightly in many positions—as judge, as governor of the Philippines, as secretary of war and now as president, for to him and the con-

MINNESOTA'S OPPORTUNITY.

(From La Follette's.)

There are three of Minnesota's members of congress who are distinctly out of harmony with the progressive sentiment of their constituents and of their state. These three are Tawney, Nye and Stevens. All of them have given the special interests faithful service, and their own people persistent misrepresentation. The following five test votes show how loyal they are to the system and the Cannon machine:

On March 15, 1909, on the question of electing Cannon again as speaker, Tawney, Nye and Stevens all voted AYE.

On the same day, on the motion to adopt the old house rules, Tawney, Nye and Stevens all voted AYE.

On January 7, 1910, on the question of adopting the Norris resolution to curtail the powers of the Cannon machine, Tawney, Nye and Stevens all voted NO.

One June 7, 1910, when Dalzell brought forward his gag rule to shut off debate and amendments to the bad postal savings bank bill, Tawney, Nye and Stevens all voted AYE.

Primary elections will be held in Minnesota on September 20. On that day the voters will have an opportunity to nominate progressives in the place of these three standpatters. Good men are in the field against Tawney, Nye and Stevens. Anderson in the First district, Hall in the Fifth district, and Halbert in the Fourth district are all sincere and able progressives—all in close touch with the needs of Minnesota and the rest of the country; all alive to the importance of driving business out of politics and politics out of business; all having faith in popular government; and all imbued with high ideals of public service. By nominating and electing these men to succeed Tawney, Nye and Stevens, the voters of these three districts will give real representation not only to themselves but also to the whole country.

HATTON IN LINE FOR M'GOVERN

He and His Friends will Support the Republican Candidate

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 17.—Friends of ex-State Senator Hatton, who have been rather unfriendly toward Francis E. McGovern since the United States senatorial campaign of two years ago, falling into line for Mr. McGovern now that he has been nominated for governor on the republican state ticket.

The sentiment of the Hatton men was voiced by W. C. Dick, New London, who is Mr. Hatton's partner and managed his senatorial campaign.

"Mr. McGovern is the party's choice for governor, and he will receive my earnest support," said Mr. Dick. "He carried the primary and did so in a fair, open fight. There is no reason whatever why every republican who calls himself a progressive should not do everything possible to ensure his election to the governorship."

THOUGHT HE COULD APE MONEY KINGS

"They All Graft," Says Disconsolate German who Fails to Work the Game Right

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Charging his downfall to the "craze for money that pervades the very atmosphere of New York City," Adolph Rothbarth, who proved the gullibility of New York banks by borrowing approximately $250,000 on no better security than the mere mention of his connection with a well known firm of hop dealers, refused again today to permit his friends to do anything in his behalf.

From his cell in the Tombs from which he hopes soon to be sent to prison on a conviction of grand larceny, Rothbarth told of his falling a victim of the money madness of New York.

"Why I wanted the money I don't know," he wailed. "It was not to spend as I have never had use for more than $2,000 or $3,000 a year. My tastes are the simplest. I care nothing for automobiles, horses, chorus girls or the other things that New Yorkers squander their money on.

"I just wanted to play the game. Others were doing it and getting away with it and I wanted to see if I could not do the same. Some are lucky at the game, like Morgan and Rockefeller, while others fail, like Morse and myself.

"Had I remained in Germany, no such thought would ever have come to me but here the madness seized me. Money is in the air here. You breathe it, you see it, you talk it, you dream it. It is the great God of your lives and I began worshipping it. Had I had any sense at all I might have seen this cell at the outset but I tell you I was crazy."

ABUSED AMERICAN DIES IN PANAMA

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 17.—Advices received here today say Wm. Harrington, an American whose treatment by Panama police two months ago aroused widespread indignation, died Monday in an insane asylum at Ancon, Panama. Harrington was arrested and charged with not fully paying for a round of drinks. Without trial he was sentenced to jail for sixty days and is said to have been thrown into stocks and beaten. The American colony here succeeded in having him removed to a hospital. The case has been reported to the state department at Washington.

JUDGE R. S. REID'S SON GETS $10,000 LEGACY

ASTORS MAY BRING "DIVA" TO TIME

Offer $10,000 Cash and an Annuity of $5,000 to Release "Sheriff Bob" Chanler

THREATEN HER WORK, TOO

Intimate They Could Make Her Lucrative Appearances in U. S. Much More Pleasant

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—John Armstrong Chaloner may not have been very far out of the way when he sent his now famous telegram:

"Who's looney now?" to his brother Robert Astor Chanler, when the news that Chanler and Cavalieri had disagreed, became public.

Attorneys who have examined the ante-nuptial agreement, unite today in asserting that it is seemingly legal proof. That this is the opinion of the members of the Chanler family, is indicated by the inference from them that they would be willing to secure Cavalieri a lump sum of $10,000 and a guaranteed annuity of $5,000 if she will execute a quit claim to her husband's possessions. While none of the members of the Chanler family, nor their friends will discuss the proposed offer, it is generally credited that it has been made. People who know Cavalieri and who are amazed over the revelations contained in the agreement filed yesterday, say that she will hardly accept any such offer. They admit, however, that the Chanler family and its influential connections, the Astors, may be able to force the diva to come to terms.

Art Her Vulnerable Point

She is admittedly bound up in her art. As a star she draws a good fat salary but she can earn less than as much in foreign appearances than she can here in America.

The Astors have a prominent part in the affairs of the Metropolitan opera house and might be able to show the diva that if she consents to a private settlement and will choke off the present scandal her American engagements can be made pleasant for her.

Until Cavalieri arrives here it will be impossible to learn what she will do. Her attorneys expect her to fight but refuse to say so for publication. They say that the ante-nuptial agreement is so strongly framed that it cannot be set aside on the grounds of fraud. Some of the members of the Chanler family are said to favor applying to the courts to have a commission appointed for Robert W. Chanler's person and property. They argue that his action in singing away everything he has in the world can be accounted for only on the sympothesis that he was not in his right mind. They seem to think that it might be possible to show that he is not responsible. If the courts should so hold the ante-nuptial agreement would not be worth the paper it is written on.

Family is Silent

None of the Chanler attorneys nor any of the family who could be reached today would discuss the report. They are angered at the publicity they have so far received and will from now on try to keep every move that may be made secret.

W. Russell Osborne, attorney for Lina Cavalieri, said today he had nothing to add to the agreement. "It has been filed and the public can judge of its value for itself," he said. He declined to say when he expected Cavalieri to arrive in this country but intimated it would be soon.

REFUSED ALIMONY; THROWN IN JAIL

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Because he failed to pay his former wife alimony, A. E. Juneau, was today sentenced to jail by Judge Petit and he will probably be prosecuted on a contempt charge for violating the Illinois law which prohibits divorced persons from re-marrying within a year.

Juneau was divorced last May and his wife alleges he has failed to pay the alimony allowed by the court. She further testified that Juneau had married Miss Susie Cummings of Milwaukee, less than a year after the divorce and was now living with her in Illinois.

FOWNES STILL LEADS

BOSTON, Sept. 17.—Playing much steadier golf W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburg, secured a lead of four up on W. K. Wood, of Chicago, for the first round of the finals of the United States Golf association national championship tournament on the links of the Brookline Country Club today.

DEPENDENT UPON GOOD BEHAVIOR

"Hod" Taylor's Will Requires Good Character and Habits at Age of 25 Years

WILL FILED AT WASHINGTON

Son of Wisconsin Waterways Commissioner Is Remembered by a Noted Relative

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16.—(Special.)—The will of the late Horace A. Taylor of Madison, Wis., was offered for probate here today. The estate which is valued at $100,000, consists of the late home of the deceased in this city, 2007 Massachusetts avenue northwest, $40,000 in cash and securities, and personal property. The estate also includes realty in Wisconsin and Texas. Mrs. Harriet Dunnell Taylor, widow of the testator, and Samuel J. Bradford, of Hudson, Wis., are named as executors under the terms of the will, which is dated January 8, 1909.

One of the provisions of the will of the late "Hod" Taylor is to the effect that if the "character and habits" of Lucien Reid of La Crosse "are such as to make it safe," he will receive $10,000 in cash when he is 25 years old.

Lucien Reid, who is a grandson of the testator, is now 20 years old, and will have his college education paid out of the Taylor estate. But whether he gets $10,000 at the completion of his four year course is dependent upon his "character and habits."

Mrs. Harriet Dunnell Taylor, widow of the testator, and Samuel J. Bradford, Hudson, Wis., are appointed under the terms of the will to judge whether the young man shall be eligible under the provisions of the will to draw down the ten thousand when the time of probation shall have expired.

Under other provisions of Mr. Taylor's will the remainder of his estate goes to the widow and his daughter, Mrs. Grace Taylor Morse, of Minneapolis.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE? WHY THE IDEA! NO!

"Do I believe in woman's suffrage? Well I should say I don't, and you can put me right down for saying so if you want to."

Miss Janette Adler, of New York city, so expressed her views yesterday afternoon when assailed by a reporter at the Stoddard.

"There are many reasons why I don't believe in woman's suffrage, and why I never will, and if I attempted to take the time to express them all you would be losing your job for loafing, my young man," dropping a gentle hint to the reporter to "vamoose."

The reporter said he was game and would take a chance on his job.

"Well, if you must know it," declared the dainty little miss, "I don't believe it's a woman's place to attempt to run the affairs of her husband, to say nothing of those of a city, county, state or the nation. Woman's suffrage is all a lot of nonsense to furnish women—mostly unmarried—with something to bother men about.

"My idea of 'Home, Sweet Home' isn't with a woman casting the ballot and her husband attending to the children. A woman's place is in the home and if she has ideas on politics let her try and convince her husband.

"And you can add to that," as she started for the elevator, "that I think the men have been pretty successful in running this country anyway."

Miss Adler, who is a charming personage, is appearing this week with her "Four Picks" at the Majestic theatre.

If some people were as free with their money as they are with their voice, what a lot of good they might do in the world.

HENEY ADDRESSES CROWD AT AUSTIN

Former Prosecutor of San Francisco Carries Comfort to Anti-Tawney Forces

AUSTIN, Minn., Sept. 17.—The Auditorium was crowded Thursday evening when Francis J. Heney of San Francisco and Sidney A. Anderson of Lanesboro, progressive candidate for congress, made addresses. Mr. Heney alluded to Tawney's charge that he was an interloper and said he could not see why any American should not speak anywhere, on subjects of national interest. A representative was not sent to congress he said, merely to get postoffice buildings.

"This government" he continued, is "too much by corporations for corporations. The most important of Tawney's record in congress is in legislation he prevented rather than what he secured."

Mr. Heney discussed Tawney's statement of facts as to why Collier's Weekly is fighting Tawney and also took up in detail the land fraud cases in which he acted as United States attorney under Secretary Knox. Many Oregon lawyers, he said, opposed his going into Oregon to try the cases and his chief opponent was an attorney for the Northern Pacific railroad.

Here the speaker said, "No wonder Jim Hill calls me a liar."

Heney told how he secured the indictment of two United States senators and obtained the confession of hundreds of those concerned in these frauds. The secretary of the interior asked for secret service men from Chief Wilkie's force, and Mr. Brynes, the greatest of all the staff, was chosen.

The speaker said that under the stone and timber act and the homestead act lumbermen—and he named Weyerhauser as one of them, secured the timber by false entries. Train loads of school teachers and others, he said, were given $50 each and a fine trip to Oregon to make entry for this land which was then transferred to the lumber companies. Continuing, he said:

"Thirteen million acres of lumber land has found its way into the hands of the trust since 1878. The stone and timber act of 1878 remains unrepealed in spite of all appeals of the people. Gross frauds have been committed, yet Mr. Tawney has done nothing to stop them. Under the desert land act thousands of acres of land have been taken fraudulently.

"Why is the cost of living so high? Mr. Hill says we are extravagant. The trouble, however, lies in congress. The agents of the people have been extravagant, even though Tawney has been at the wheel of appropriations for five years. This extravagance was begun in the Civil War times by generous grants to the railroads.

"Minnesota got the fever at that time, but congress made grants to the railroads of 120,000,000 acres, while under the homestead law only 150,000,000 acres have been taken since the beginning of the government.

"We have men in this country worth a million, some ten million, some fifty million, some one hundred million dollars. The Northern Pacific got land enough in its free grants to more than pay the entire cost of building the road and Mr. Hill is one of the beneficiaries of this. Mr. Hill is not in a position to cry extravagance when the government has been most extravagant of all."

Mr. Heney closed by an extended discussion of Tawney's position or Roosevelt policies — conservation, country home life, child labor, and others. Heney and Anderson spoke at Byron last night.

POSSES ARE OUT AFTER HIGHWAYMEN

BISBEE, Ariz., Sept. 17.—Posses have been sent out to search for a masked highwayman who held up two Chinese here, precipitating a fight in which one Chinaman was killed and the highwayman is believed to have been wounded.

The highwayman, believed to be a Mexican, rode into the Chinese quarter and robbed the first two Chinese he saw of $100. One of the victims resisted and opened fire, attracting the attention of other inhabitants of the quarter who engaged in a running fight with the highwayman. The robber succeeded in remounting his horse and escaping.

POSTOFFICE AT WALKER ROBBED

WALKER, Minn., Sept. 17.—Burglars broke into the Walker postoffice, blew open the safe and stole $800 in stamps and $200 in cash.

Residents nearby heard a slight report and soon thereafter two men were seen coming from the postoffice and going toward the Great Northern station. Not until later in the morning was it ascertained what had happened. The work was apparently that of experts.

WISCONSIN NEWS

INSURE LABORERS IN SIX BIG STATES

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 17.—There was considerable disappointment on the part of the members of the Wisconsin commission for industrial insurance when it was learned on Friday that the Illinois commission has reported that it is unable to agree on a system of insurance to be put in the form of a bill.

The failure of the Illinois commission will not affect the bill to be drawn in Wisconsin, but it had been hoped that Illinois and Minnesota would both pass laws similar to the one proposed by the Wisconsin comsion this winter in order that the manufacturers who must accept a certain amount of the burden of the insurance may not be driven from this state to neighboring ones.

Paul Walker, secretary of the commission, says it is believed that a law similar to the Wisconsin bill will be passed in Minnesota at the coming session. New York already has a comprehensive system. Missouri and Michigan are to have a commission appointed and at work within a year. Massachusetts, Ohio and New Jersey now have commissions at work.

SCHWAB PREDICTS ELECTION OF TEDDY

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 17.—Theodore Roosevelt is not an insurgent, according to Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel company, who passed through Omaha enroute to San Francisco to meet Prince Tsai Tsun of China.

"I consider Mr. Roosevelt a progressive and not an insurgent," the steel magnate said. "In the east generally he is not classed as an insurgent."

Schwab was intensely interested in the recent tour of the former president through the west.

"How did the people receive him?" he asked, 'and what will the west do for Roosevelt when the next presidential campaign nears?"

As a conclusion he said: "I guess its the man and not the platfor you people; you will vote f for president under any stances."

Schwab denied that he exp sell the Chinese government t Prince Tsai Hsun the steel for navy, but admitted that his in seeing the prominent Chi ficial was purely business.

ESCH VS. BALDWIN

Efficiency of representation in congress, and fidelity of representation to the purposes of a well defined majority, is important to the people of each congressional district. It is therefore important that the majority be alert always to matters affecting the quality and accuracy of their representation, having in mind as an element in consideration of the subject the fact that, as in every line of endeavor, long service tends to constantly increasing efficiency where the efforts of the member are rightly directed.

Judge Cameron Baldwin has announced himself a candidate for congress against Hon. John J. Esch, basing his action upon the assertion that Mr. Esch is not a progressive republican and therefore not truly representative of the majority in his district, and that Mr. Esch's record in congress as well as his conduct with relation to political affairs in the Seventh district substantiate the accusation.

Off-hand opinions relative to the matter have been freely expressed, following the action of Judge Baldwin. People quite generally have impressions relative to the subject. However, it is probable that the exactitude of knowledge which justice requires in the treatment of the situation is enjoyed by comparatively few people. While familiar in a large measure with Mr. Esch's activities, The Tribune has not felt qualified to be judge of the matter without a thorough examination of the congressional record. That examination is now in progress, and from the data so derived we will in due time attempt a fair and unbiased analysis of the stewardship of Hon. John J. Esch.

NOTHING SERIOUS

President Taft's sudden restoration of patronage to insurgents, following last week's primary, is said by his apologists to be recognition of the right of the majority to rule. These defenders of the president also say that he is and always has been "an insurgent himself." The president's secretary tells the public that the name of Taft was used by stalwarts in certain states "without the consent of the president." This announcement might have been regarded as important prior to the primary; now, after the primary, it will not be widely credited. The general impression created by the Taft letter will probably be the same which it made upon Senator Beveridge, who upon reading the remarkable epistle indulged in a hearty laugh.

KERFLOP!

"Robert M. La Follette, Francis E. McGovern, Thomas Morris, James A. Frear, Andrew H. Dahl, Herman L. Ekern, John J. Esch, Otto Bosshard, John E. McConnell, Valentine Keppel, Charles H. Rawlinson, Henry Freehoff, Eugene H. Derr, Leonard Kleeber, Russell D. Smith, James Thompson, Andrew Thompson, George P. Bradish."

Publishing the above names in the form of a ticket, Mr. Gelatt's evening Chronicle says that, "It is not in all respects the ticket which The Chronicle supported in the primary campaign." The Chronicle is correct. The respect in which it failed to "support all" of the men on this ticket is this: that it OPPOSED them all.

The Chronicle further avows that it "will support not only the candidates on the republican ticket AND ALL OF THEM," but that it wil "support the public policies for which the candidates stand." A quality of recollection too keen for the ordinary uses of a Stephenson newspaper suggests the likelihood that progressive republicans would prefer continued opposition by The Chronicle and Leader-Press as the most effective assistance to them of which these papers are capable. However, they may have steeled themselves against the endorsement of Mr. Gelatt recognized as inevitable as soon as the stalwart cause reached a stage of dilapidation such as to deter even the most desperate of the special interests from further "skinning its weasel" in support of the faction. In the judgment of the esteemed contemporary the time has arrived when standpat journalism has no further dividends to offer, so we are not surprised to be joined by a versatile party whom we expect to recognize, as soon as the political plaster peels off, as he who has, for a consideration, lent inconsistent and inconsequent support to "this splendid aggregation of capital and intelligence."

"TIME TO RETIRE TAWNEY"

The Milwaukee Journal contributes the following to current literature relative to the record of Congressman "Jim" Tawney:

"Over in the Winona district, Minnesota, James A. Tawney, the one pronounced Cannonite in the congressional delegation from that state, the one member of the delegation who voted for the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, is having the fight of his life for renomination. The struggle is of interest to good citizens everywhere.

Tawney's record in congress is singularly open to criticism. Twice during the fifty-eighth congress President Roosevelt urged congress to provide for an investigation of child labor in the United States. Tawney strenuously fought the bill, but it finally passed. Then Tawney tried to have the investigation conducted by the census bureau, although Director North declared that the work was foreign to his bureau and belonged to the bureau of labor. The senate amended the bill so as to give the work over to the bureau of labor. Tawney fought this amendment in two conferences, but finally yielded of necessity in a third conference.

The census bureau, it should be borne in mind, would have simply made a statistical investigation—not an intensive one. President Roosevelt wanted all the facts.

At the same session a bill passed congress regulating child labor in the District of Columbia. Tawney protested against a provision in the bill for the appointment of two inspectors to enforce the law. He was defeated, but when the district commissioners came to select two inspectors, they found that there was no appropriation for the purpose. Tawney was chairman of the committee on appropriations—and they were compelled to detail two policemen to act as child labor inspectors. A model child labor law given over to policemen! Of course, it became a dead letter.

Tawney, during the same session, fought a proposed appropriation of $20,000 to enable the secretary of the interior to engage secret service agents to continue the uncovering of land frauds, but he was defeated. Tawney, by the way, voted for ship subsidies and to increase the salaries of congressmen.

During the first session of the sixtieth congress, Tawney reported a proviso in the sundry civil bill which prohibited the use of the secret service to detect counterfeiters and to protect the president. Before that the secret service had been used to ferret out land frauds. In his last annual message President Roosevelt declared that this proviso 'has been of benefit only, and could be of benefit only, to the criminal classes. If deliberately introduced for the purpose of diminishing the effectiveness of war against crime, it could not have been better devised to this end.'

"The next session Tawney reported another sundry civil bill which prohibited the use of any appropriation or the employment of any of the government's experts to assist in the work of any commission not expressly created by congress. President Roosevelt, on his own initiative, had appointed the country life commission, the inland waterways commission and the conservation commission.

"In a magazine article, it will be remembered, President Van Hise of the university of Wisconsin, subsequently showed how this amendment effectually blocked the work of the national conservation commission and he roundly denounced Tawney for instigating the amendment. Tawney made a reply which was just about as weak a defense as a public man ever made of one of his public acts.

"Tawney should be defeated next Tuesday. He has appointed numerous editors to postmasterships and in addition he has won the support of the owners of the many creameries in his district by upholding anti-oleomargerine legislation, but his constituents ought to realize the moral and fundamental questions which are involved in this campaign, and should nominate Tawney's opponent, who stands for the new order of things.

"The renomination of Tawney would be a standing reproach to the intelligence of the republican electors of the Winona district."

"HANK" ON "TEDDY"

Colonel Henry Watterson, who a few days ago raised the question as to whether Colonel Roosevelt could Bryanize the republican party, has answered the inquiry to his own satisfaction. The Courier-Journal says:

"We do not believe that Theodore velt will be able to 'Bryanize' the republican party. In our opinion he has 'bit off more than he can chaw.' His day will be short-lived. Already the country is waking up to the meaning of his crusade. If he should beat the Old Guard at Saratoga, obtaining both his platform and his nominee and approving himself the whole show, he will have to carry the succeeding election in November. Failing of this, down he goes, 'like Maginty to the bottom of the sea,' from which no Life Saving Station will be in reach to rescue him. If, on the other hand, the Bosses beat him, his fling will be prolonged until 1912, to meet in the National Republican Convention, either personal shipwreck, or a party riven from stem to stern."

THE MACEDONIAN CALL

Wisconsin has profited this year by the appearance here of many distinguished men from outside the state. Senators and others, among them the most able men in the nation, came to this state and spoke in behalf of Senator La Follette, though in the light of the election returns their aid may not have been at all necessary to assure the proper education of the electorate.

Now that a great victory has been won in this state by the progressive cause there is being sounded a call from Macedonia, just across the line in Minnesota, which progressives of this state ought to heed. This call is from those progressives who are fighting to replace the Cannon disciple, "Jim" Tawney, with a man who will truly represent the district rather than special interests. The call is naturally heard louder in the western part of the state than elsewhere and is being given expression on the Wisconsin side of the river by the La Crosse Tribune, which believes the successful progressive candidates in Wisconsin should go over and give battle to the doughty Tawney. It is a good suggestion and we believe with The Tribune that such an invasion would be of substantial aid to the progressive movement, which is just as vital in Minnesota as it is here.—Racine Times.

Though the state of Illinois fell into disrepute owing to the discovery that its legislature had been corrupted to the core and a United States senatorship sold upon the block, its complexion following that disclosure was lily white when compared with its hue created by Thursday's primary in which the voters of the state renominated nearly every man indicted or accused in relation to the legislative rascality. Illinois has endorsed graft and corruption. There can be no mistake about that. Much sympathy is due those of its citizens whose pride of statehood led them into a desperate fight against the boodlers. But, as a state, Illinois is darkened by the shadow of a cloud.

It has been suggested that the initiative, referendum and recall may form planks in the Wisconsin republican platform. This brings to mind the fact that the coming legislature should not neglect to modify the present law authorizing cities to adopt the commission form of government, by the passage of a recall amendment.

The Music Master

I've taught quite a lot of music pupils in my time;
Some played the deuce, some played—that's all—a few could play in time.
Some learned to say "Herr Wagner," but would keep me on the rack
By the horribleness of the way they said "Sebastian Bach!"
Now, one of these Americans was full of much surprises,
The way she practiced faithfully on finger exercises.
I loved her for her faithful work—but what an awful shock
It was to hear her say the master's name like beer—"John Bach!"
One little boy was schoen; He didn't call George Cohan "swell."
And I gave him deutsche Lieder, and he played them very well
I really thought I'd found Pepito Arriola's match
Till he spoke about Der Meister—and he called him "Mr. Batch!"
They called him "Bach" to rhyme with "gash," and "Bach" to rhyme with "chalk;"
They called him "Bach" to rhyme with "gosh," I never heard such talk!
I thought I'd find some pupils in America, but Ach, mein Gott!
How can a fellow play who can't pronounce it "Bach?"

—Toledo Blade.

On the Ground Floor

"I dined with Henry James, the American novelist," said a magazine editor, "at his London club, the Athenaeum. Over the dessert I reproached James for the dreadful way he roasts the morals and manners of our millionaires in 'The Jolly Corner.' James said they deserved roasting—and to prove it he told me a story.

"He said a New York multi-millionaire got converted one night at a revival meeting, and, standing up in his place, the rich convert declared that his conversion was retroactive, and he proposed to make restitution to any one he had ever wronged.

"Well, about 2 o'clock that morning the millionaire was awakened by a long ring at the bell. He put his head out of the window,

"'Who's that?' he said.

"'I am Thomas J. Griggs,' was the reply. 'I heard about your conversion and I'd like you to pay me back that two hundred thousand you cheated me out of in the U. D. receivership.'

"'All right, I'll pay you,' said the millionaire. 'But why the deuce,' he added angrily, 'do you want to ring me up at this hour?'

"'Well, you see,' was the reply, 'I thought I'd come early and avoid the rush.'"—Washington Star.

Just Guessing

During the term instruction had been given as to the visit of the Dutch fleet to the Medway. In examination the following question was put: "Explain the context of the passage, 'This would never have happened if Oliver had been alive.'" One answer was as follows: "This was said when they dug up the body of Oliver Cromwell after the restoration."—Punch.

A Familiar Warning

Mrs. Jones' favorite warning to her young progeny when they were in mischief was that she would tend to them in a minute. "Tending" was accomplished by applying her open hand where it would do the most good. When Harry was 4 years old he was sent for the first time around the corner to the grocery. In a few minutes he came trotting soberly back with the nickel still in his hand but no bag of onions.

"What's the matter?" asked his mother.

"I'm 'fraid of the man," he said, solemnly

"Oh, he won't hurt you," reassured Mrs. Jones. "Run along and bring the onions. I'm in a hurry for them."

A second time Harry disappeared round the corner, and a second time returned without his purchase.

"I'm afraid of the grocer man," he explained, as before.

"Well, what makes you afraid of him?" demanded his mother, impatiently.

"Why," answered the little fellow, "bofe times when I goed in he looked at me, an' said, 'I'll tend to you in a minute!'"—Youth's Companion.

A Fatal Breather

"Mark Twain hated a gloomy man," said a New York editor. "Once at a banquet, a gloomy man sat opposite him. This man would not smile at the most amusing jokes.

"'What's the matter with you?' cried Mark Twain. 'The stories are all good. Why don't you laugh?'

"'Ah, sir,' said the gloomy man, 'how con I laugh when I remember that every time I breathe a soul passes into the great beyond?'

"'Good gracious,' said the humorist, 'did you ever try cloves?'"—Washington Star.

The Carleton Case

By Ellery H. Clark

Copyright by Bobbs-Merrill Company.

The old man nodded, gazing straight before him. "Doctor," he asked suddenly, with apparent irrelevance, "you took my pulse today. What did you think of my heart?"

Helmar, surprised, parried with the clumsiness of a man not fond of deception. "Why," he evaded, "I wouldn't worry about that. All you have is a cold. You've got a pretty good heart, I think. We none of us grow any younger, though. That's sure."

Edward Carleton smiled a little grimly. "Thanks," he said, "sometimes a patient knows more about himself than a doctor thinks he does. And I suppose I could guess pretty well what certain things mean. Never mind, though. As you say, we don't grow any younger, more's the pity."

Both were silent, Helmar pausing a moment, uncertainly, with one hand on the knob of the door. Then the old man glanced up at him, with a smile genial and friendly, if a trifle wistful. "Good-by, Doctor," he said courteously, "thank you for your interest. And tell Jack he's always welcome, whenever he finds time to run out. The Birches is always his home, and his room stands ready for him—always."

Five minutes later Helmar again passed down the broad steps of the piazza into the cheerful, dazzling sunlight. The little girl and her nurse were still seated under the shade of the big elm, and at once the spaniel, breaking away from his new friends, came tearing across the lawn to his master, ruthlessly scattering buttercups at every bound. With a laugh Helmar picked him up in his arms, and took him back to make his proper farewells. For the little girl the final moment of parting was a hard one, and she gazed longingly at her playmate, as though unwilling to have him go. Her nurse, observing her, shook her head in reproof. "Don't be so foolish, Miss Rose," she chided, "he's only a little dog; you mustn't be silly;" then, suddenly, she looked squarely at Helmar. "Will you excuse me, please," she said softly, "but I know that you're a friend of Mr. Jack's. Would you tell me where a letter would reach him?"

Helmar eyed her keenly, and before his gaze the blue eyes dropped, and this time they were not raised again. A faint flush stole into her cheeks. Helmar, in his turn, looked away. "Yes," he answered shortly. "Mayflower Club, City, is his present address."

He had his reward. At once the girl's eyes were raised again, and her look sought his with the same smile that he had seen before. It was not a smile of the lips alone, but of the eyes as well, and a certain nameless something that flashed from still deeper within, a piquant frankness, a dangerous friendliness. Again he started to turn away, then stopped; his eyes, though half against his will, still seeking hers.

On the silence broke in the voice of the little girl. "Is it Cousin Jack?" she demanded, "do you know Cousin Jack?" And as Helmar nodded, she cried, "I wish you'd tell him to come out and see me. He hasn't been here for an awfully long time. Will you tell him, please?"

Helmar promised, and with a glance at his watch, took a hasty leave. Thoughtfully enough he made his way back to the station, and yet, before he reached it, one meeting more was destined to give him food for further meditation. Nearing the entrance to the station lane, the vigorous and friendly bark of his faithful body-guard struck suddenly on his ear, and turning the corner, he paused in quck surprise at the sight of the girl who knelt upon the grass, parasol, hat and gloves tossed carelessly aside, holding the spaniel's head imprisoned caressingly between her dainty hands, and talking to him with mock severity the while. As she glanced up, perceiving Helmar, she somewhat hastily arose, and as he approached, smilingly extended her hand in greeting.

Very attractive, indeed, she looked. Fashionably dressed, yet simply, as well; young—she could scarcely have been over twenty, at the most—and with a face that one could hardly choose but like at once—the clear-cut, regular features, the honest, straightforward brown eyes, the pretty color in the dimpled cheeks, the firm little chin, the laughing, yet sensitive mouth. One liked too the erectness of her slender figure, and the well-poised head, crowned with its masses of soft brown hair. If one had been ungracious enough to venture a criticism, the thought might have come that she shared, perhaps, the fault of so many American girls of the well-to-do class, the excusable habit of taking the good things of life too much as a matter of course, of being too easily satisfied with the doings and standards of their own particular class and "set," of having no real knowledge, and worse still, perhaps, of desiring none, of the great world at large. Yet even if the criticism had been hazarded, the critic must still have been forced to admit that plenty of character showed in the girl's face, and while of her mere good looks alone there could be no question, in seeming paradox, the more one looked at her the more one forgot her mere prettiness, granting it carelessly enough as something secondary, so much more uncommon and striking were the other qualties written there—strength and sympathy and above all, that holy and beatiful thing before which any man may well stand in reverent admiration—the innate goodness of the true woman, pure in thought and deed.

As he took her hand, Helmar's face showed his surprise. "Well, Marjory Graham," he cried, "who'd have thought of seeing you."

Laughingly the girl mimicked him. "Why, Franz Helmar," she said in turn, "you're not the one to be surprised. You knew I lived in Eversley. But what are you doing out here?.

MAJESTIC TO HAVE FEATURE ACTS

Next Week's Program of Popular Playhouse Filled with the Latest Acts in Vaudeville

BABOONS AND MONKEYS

This Act Has Been a Success Since Its Initial Production; First Time Here

Net week's bill at the Majestic theatre will be one of the best since the opening of the theatre.

Leading all the acts will be the Morris baboons and monkeys. This act is a novelty in itself, nothing of the kind ever having been put on here. In the act eight baboons and monkeys are used.

Playing a piano while it is being whirled around on a pedestal at a rapid rate is one of the features of the act of Frank Brzinsky and his piano quarto, which will appear next week. Five pianos and five men are used in the act, which has created a name for itself throughout the vaudeville world.

Miss Alice Van, international dancer, will appear here for the first time in her own original dance novelty, "A Trip Around the World." In this act Miss Van portrays vividly the dances of all the nations.

Clark and Duncan, refined comedy entertainers, will be in La Crosse for the first time in an act which has the reputation of being a hummer from start to finish. The sketch, which portrays the vaudeville villain and heroine, is filled with rich comedy.

He Addressed the Jury

A man who had never been in court before in his life, was recently called as a witness in a court in southern Indiana. On being sworn he took a position with his back to the jury and began telling his story to the judge, who courteously said: "Address your remarks to the jury, sir."

The witness paused for a moment, but not comprehending what was said to him, remained in the same position.

The judge was then more explicit and said, "Speak to the jury, sir, the men behind you on the benches."

The witness turned around, bowed awkwardly, and said, "Good morning, gentlemen."—National Weekly.

BIG UNCLE TOM'S CABIN REVIVAL

Al. W. Martin's world's greatest production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is booked for La Crosse Theater soon. This is the only "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company that appears in all the important cities, and judging from the comments of the press of those cities, Mr. Martin this season has surpassed all his efforts of previous years.

It was in the evening when the day's work in the cotton fields was done, "Massa" had gone to bed in the darkened days of slavery, that the dusky toilers of the plantation were wont to gather round their humble huts and there hold high carnival under the pale light of the moon. Although these scenes have passed into tradition there is still a strong semblance of these interesting pastimes left in the plantation and levee pictures introduced in Al. W. Martin's big spectacular revival.

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 17.—George L. Sullivan, 15 year old son of Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Tomah, Wis., died at 2 o'clock this morning, as a result of being shot through the head at 5:30 yesterday afternoon by Hughie Fanning, aged 15, at the home of Mrs. Fanning here. A crowd of boys were playing in the kitchen with a revolver supposed to be empty, and the Sullivan lad was shot through the temple, while his mother was away. ROCHESTER TRIES TO RAISE FUNDS

The members of the Rochester baseball club, says the Rochester Bulletin, state that they are getting together the things they can best dispose of in order to raise funds. They will sell the goods at auction Saturday afternoon.

The ball players make such remarks regarding their financial stringency, because they are sore over delayed payment of salaries. Had the team played better ball the last weeks of its career there would undoubtedly be little hitch as to the salaries. But the impression prevails throughout Rochester and the league towns that the aggregation absolutely laid down, with the exception of a few good players and those who hold the purse strings naturally do not feel in a rush to hand over good cash for lost games.

A beautiful yarn garment is the result of two things: fine materials and skill.

But the part seldom appreciated is that two-thirds of the skill is that of the men who make the yarns. No amount of skill on your part can correct poor workmanship in the yarn mill. Remember this, and before you buy yarns learn all you can of the Fleisher Yarns. Send for a sample card. Read the claims and guarantee. Ask women who use them. Test them in any way you wish. You are almost certain to arrive at the conclusion already reached by four-fifths of the yarn-users of the country—"The Fleisher Yarns are the finest, most durable yarns made."

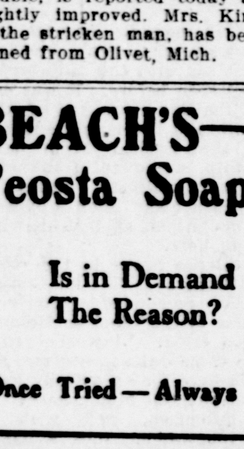
THE LATEST STYLES IN KNITTING AND CROCHETING

New Knit Coat with Blouse Effect

This is a striking example of the radical improvements that have lately been made in sweater designing. Every line is in accord with prevailing fashion yet the coat has distinctive character that can be obtained only with yarn.



The model is made in two tones of brown; a beautiful tan for the body and a deep rich brown for the front and trimmings. It is made of Fleisher's Germantown Zephyr which combines with the shape-retaining qualities of all the Fleisher Yarns a softness of thread that produces a smooth close texture.

Full directions for making this and many other new and staple articles may be found in the (eighth) edition of Fleisher's Knitting and Crocheting Manual, an invaluable handbook for beginner and expert. Contains a complete course of instruction in the various stitches and is the only authoritative guide to fashion in articles made of yarns.

Grain Letter

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The fluctuations in wheat today were very narrow but the options had a stronger tone and a much more popular sentiment. Higher cables, better cash wheat demand and lighter northwestern receipts were the chief factors along with the technical feature of recent large coverings of short wheat which has drained the local market temporarily. The local cash sales were 10,000 bushels.

Corn weakened further under the splendid weather for bringing the crop to safety but the decline has helped the shipping trade. Local cash sales 205,000 bushels.

Oats sympathized with wheat more than corn and gained a little in value today. Offerings from the interior continue and the week's total at primary markets is less than a year ago. Local cash sales 190,000 bushels.

Provisions trade was light and prices were easier all around. The support was limited and the offerings only a little larger.

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Evening Post Company.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—This was again a Saturday when the stock exchange, to all intents, kept holiday. The business done was small and the change in prices measured by minor fractions. One or two sharp advances in certain usually inactive stocks had no particular significance except to emphasize by contrast the lifeless market elsewhere and perhaps to show that professional speculators are at present more disposed to experiment on the side of rising than of falling prices.

ENROLLMENT OF Y NIGHT SCHOOL ON

Association will Begin Monday and Expects Large Classes of Young Falks

The enrollment in the Y. M. C. A. night school begins next Monday. The association is looking for a large increase in the enrollment this year over last year. The course of study offered have been doubled to meet the demand for a more varied line of work. Besides mechanical drawing, English for foreign young men, business arithmetic, penmanship and bookkeeping and elementary studies offered last year, which will be conducted this coming season, courses in a architectural drawing, stenography, business law, German, music and business grammar will be offered.

These courses are arranged to require two nights a week for a season of twenty weeks, school opening the week of Oct. 3, and concluding the last of April, when the final examinations take place. The teachers in each course of study are selected first for their fitness and in the second place for their interest in the class of men reached through the association night school. Individual instruction is given in nearly all cases, so that every student enrolled is given the greatest opportunity possible for advancement. The tuition fees are made exceedingly low for the grade of work offered, especially in those classes arranged for working boys. Full information with reference to class hours, tuition fees, and enrollment can be secured at any time at the ofice of the association.

GRAFT MONEY WENT TO GEO. R. MALBY

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—That Congressman Geo. R. Malby, while a member of the state senate in 1903 benefitted by $500 from a fund of $10,000 raised by the Street Railway association of the state was sworn to at the legislative graft investigation. Why the money was paid to Malby, who is the political leader of the district represented in the state assembly by E. A. Merritt, Jr., chairman of the investigating committee, was not established. Of the $10,000 fund raised by the railway association and deposited with the stock exchange firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham, it was developed $2,000 also went to the account of the late S. Fred Nixon, for years speaker of the assembly and $2,000 to the account of state Senator Goodsell, who represented Gov. Odell's district in the state senate.

The fund of $10,000 was raised by a special assessment on the members of the street railway association and at once deposited by the legislative agent of the association, G. Tracy Rogers, with the brokerage concern to be credited to a clerk, who had a "dummy" accolunt. The investigating comfittee will try to show that this money was checked off to influential members of the legislature in 1903 and why it was done.

H. H. Vreeland, former head of the Metropolitan Street Railway system, testified to contributions by the company to campaign funds in 1902. He gave $25,000 to the republican state committee and $17,000 to the democrats. He believed there were contributions in other years but he had no knowledge of them.

DENBY EARLY WITH WHITEWASH COAT

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 17.—Although for some time it has been known that Representative Denby was a pro-Ballinger member of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, his public announcement through an interview here that he finds Ballinger blameless is causing considerable adverse comment. It was pointed out by many progressive republicans and opponents of Denby that he is the first to give his own finding in advance of the report of the majority.

"In my opinion, after hearing all the evidence and carefully studying the case, Ballinger is not guilty of corruption or breach of trust," said Denby.

"Whatever the political consequences of this attitude may be, I cannot vote to convict an innocent man.

"The action of the minority in proclaiming their conclusions to the world without consultation or argument in the committee is indefensible. I would have greatly preferred to make no comment, but in view of the minorty's action in Minneapolis, I ought to say that I do not concur in their findings."

The Union Man's F

the german cares not

for rich, elaborate dishes—he cares not for sumptuous fare. Simple, nourishi food and a bottle of PURE BEER craves he.

It is not how much is eaten that makes him rosy, posy, healthy and fat. But h well the food digests—how well it assimilates.

The German's after-dinner hours are not spent in misery. The single bottle of Be that he indulges in immediately sets to work to aid his digestive apparatus. Th again, as Beer is a predigested liquid food it assimilates readily and rapidly, leavi his mind free to dwell upon lighter and happier things.

The German is a connoisseur—displaying an inherited instinct for PURE Beer at times. The German-Americans of this locality are cognizant of the fact that "Mad in-La Crosse" Beer is the cleanest, clearest purest Beer in the world.
